Time drags on for ice arena

Construction of the ice hockey arena, on property of Ben Restuccia, on Main Street in Wilmington has taken a set back. According to Al Reidy of Shawsheen Avenue, the rink may possibly not be ready until some time after New Year's Day.

He has no estimated time for completion. Reidy points out that there is a steel shortage, and it may be 12 weeks before the steel arrives for the construction of the building.

a new structural engineer has been hired, Arthur Choo, of Boston, and it's hoped that Choo can get steel quicker.

Reidy believes that the steel may be up before winter, but he does not know when the project will be completed inside.

The rink is to be 100 by 200 feet — Olympic size, Reidy said. It will be one of two Olympic sized rinks in the United States — the other being at Lake Placid, New York.

Meanwhile other persons, officials of the Wilmington Youth Hockey, have told the Town Crier that they believe the rink will not be opened until next March. They do not know the reason.

Jack Calandrello, head coach of the Midget Team in the Wilmington Youth Hockey League, has told the Town Crier that he understands there will be many teams playing on the rink when it is completed.

Calandrello believes that there are at least 200 teams which are eligible to play on the rink. He is worrying, he told the Town Crier, because he does not know where the teams can play during the coming winter season.

Coaches learn about sports medicine

Seven Wilmington High School coaches and phys ed teachers recently gathered in the school gym for a four hour workshop on sports medicine given by staff members at Choate-Symmes Health Services.

Bridget McCane, a community health educator, taught first aid for summer and fall sports. Mark Manfredi, physical therapist at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, covered health and preventative maintenance in sports. The two provided "hands on" instruction in first aid and preventative maintenance techniques.

"The clinic is aimed at the coaches because they are ultimately responsible for their athletes' well-being," said Manfredi "and they feel responsible. They must decide, for instance, if a student continues playing."

Jan Cassidy, Wilmington High School physical education instructor, praised the workshop as "an excellent review," saying that the coaches had many questions because they don't have as strong a health background as the physical education teachers.

Jan Urquhart, also a physical education instructor at Wilmington, added, "The 'hands-on' part, such as bandaging and carrying techniques, was a great refresher course. I think that much of the workshop information would also be valuable for the classroom teachers."

Topics covered by Mark Manfredi included proper nutritional habits and weight training as stamina builders, the importance of ample warm-up exercises and taping to prevent muscle and joint trauma during an event, protective equipment and alternative body contact techniques.

Ms. McCane included a review of CPR techniques, splinting, control of bleeding, heat stroke, and how to spot injuries such as neck injuries which may not be immediately obvious.

The workshop, which included a question and answer period, addressed issues exclusive to certain sports as well as those issues relevant to all events.

Manfredi and McCane are available to conduct similar programs for coaches and physical education teachers in the Choate-Symmes service area.

Tewksbury sewer about ready for use, six extensions proposed Tewksbury's main trunk line sewer project, funded by federal, state and local governments, is virtually ready for use. Don Breda, engineer from the firm of Camp Dresser & McKee, told selectmen, acting as the board of public works last Thursday, that tests have been made along the entire 20 miles of the project and that all "infiltration (of water) was found to be within the specified amount in good construction practice."

In other words, the leakage is below the amount allowed in good practice.

There will be, during the next year, connections for homeowners and others, to the Tewksbury sewer.

There will also be, in the next year, expansion of the present system, but this time by private contractors. Proposals for six projects, some to be described as large and some as small, have been presented to selectmen.

Michael and Tim Sullivan of the Indian Ridge Development Corporation have approval to connect the condominiums they are constructing on Shawsheen Street to the trunk line near the Tew-Mac Airport.

A 12 inch sewer is projected. The project was approved last March, but details have as yet to be completed. Last Thursday the selectmen approved the final plans, after hearing approval by consulting engineers, Camp Dresser & McKee.

Michael Sullivan was told he can put the sewer in, and he plans to do so in the next six weeks. Sullivan discussed with the selectmen matters pertaining to sewer and water bills, which the selectmen took under advisement.

Sullivan's point of discussion was the use of one meter for the entire project, instead of one for each housing unit. Each unit, Sullivan said, uses about 30,000 gallons of water per year. Water for lawns in the project is being supplied from private wells.

The sewer bill, for any home or business in Tewksbury, will be a percentage of the water bill, but the selectmen are not yet in a position to decide that percentage. First they will have to approve the Sewer Rules and Regulations. That is expected to be done next Thursday.

Then the selectmen can discuss the Sullivan proposals.

A second sewer project which is being planned is that of the Centre Realty Trust. Norman Boudreau and Peter Peters of Tewksbury, together with former resident John Comeau, now of Derry, New Hampshire, are members of the Centre Realty Trust. They are planning to construct condominiums on the site of the former Roper greenhouses, off Pleasant Street. A sewer is being planned to connect with the trunk line near the railroad tracks on North Street. The distance from the railroad to Ropers is 4764 feet.

A 10 inch gravity sewer was proposed some months ago. It was, at that time, called the Round Pond Interceptor.

The selectmen are in favor, although all the details are not yet approved. One reason for the favorable outlook is that the proposed sewer extension will connect with the North Street School. The annual septage bill at that school is about $15,000.

The value of the project has been estimated at $400,000. The sewer would be in back of the North Street School and in back of the Patten Green condominiums. It would service Helvetia Street, the Town Hall area, and homes along Pleasant Street, as well as the proposed condominiums at the Roper site.

DPW Superintendent Phil Pattison told the selectmen that, because of a change of plans with the Patten Green condos, the depth of the water been increased about a dozen feet. He also told the selectmen that 1900 feet of peat was in the area.

In part, discussions last Thursday centered around services to homes along Pleasant Street.

If a sewer for Pleasant Street were constructed under the auspices of the town, state and/or federal governments, there would be an $800 connection charge for each home. Connections (stubs) would be made at the property line of each home, at the time of sewer construction.

The question being debated at this time is what status does a privately constructed sewer have, in this phase of sewer construction. Can such a connection charge be made, as a part of the sewer construction?

In any event the question will be moot until the Centre Realty Trust has a legal right ("easement") to construct sewers in the town's highways. A town meeting vote maybe required.

Norman Boudreau told the selectmen that he hopes to see the sewers constructed in or before November.

The Casa Grande Long Term Care facility is seeking to connect into the proposed Pleasant Street extension. The distance from the site up Town Hall Avenue to Pleasant Street is about 2,000 feet. DPW Supt. Pattison said that, because the Round Pond sewer depth had been increased it could be possible to connect Casa Grande for about $100,000. A pumping station would probably be needed, he said.

JDC Industries appeared before the board of selectmen, accompanied by Atty. Kevin Sullivan. JDC is the firm that is proposing the Apple Hill Technology Park, off North Street, and close to Route 495.

At this time the firm is proposing to construct buildings valued at about $20 million. This proposal is being termed the first phase of their project.

To serve the first phase of the project, the firm is proposing an eight inch gravity sewer be built from their site out to North Street, a distance of 610 feet. An underground pumping station would accept the flow and pump it through a 1260 foot long force main along North Street to Andover Street.

Selectman Bill Hallisey informed the firm that he is "firmly against" any pumping station which is being proposed to be constructed and then operated by the town. If there were to be a pumping station it should remain in the operation of the company, he said.

The superintendent's recommendation is a 5700 foot long cross country sewer leading from the site to the Trull Brook interceptor. That sewer would cross Greenmeadow Drive and Trull Road, and would cost about $350,000 to $400,000.

A third possible route for the JDC sewer would be in back of the Loella F. Dewing School. This could involve a swap of land, or other agreement. No such discussions seem to have been made.

Engineer William G. Troy was present to discuss a proposal for a sewer to service part of Maple Road. He had only a few minutes to discuss the proposal.

The sewer would serve about 1,000 feet of Maple Road, he said, as far as the site of the former home of Victor Cluff. That property is now owned by William Ingersoll, whom Troy was representing. Ingersoll owns several acres of land at that site.

A request by the superintendent for a discussion of a previous vote of the selectmen, concerning connections of homes to sewers, was tabled until next Thursday. Mr. Pattison requests clarification of details. The previous vote was to the effect that all homes and buildings accessible to the sewer shall connect with the town's new sanitary sewer.

Specifically Pattison seeks answers to proposals by some builders to construct on-site sewer systems, pending the Board of Health's decisions. Jurisdiction and accessibility should be defined, Pattison says.

The DPW will resume discussion on Thursday at 7 p.m.

Keep Bill Gustus Middlesex County Treasurer

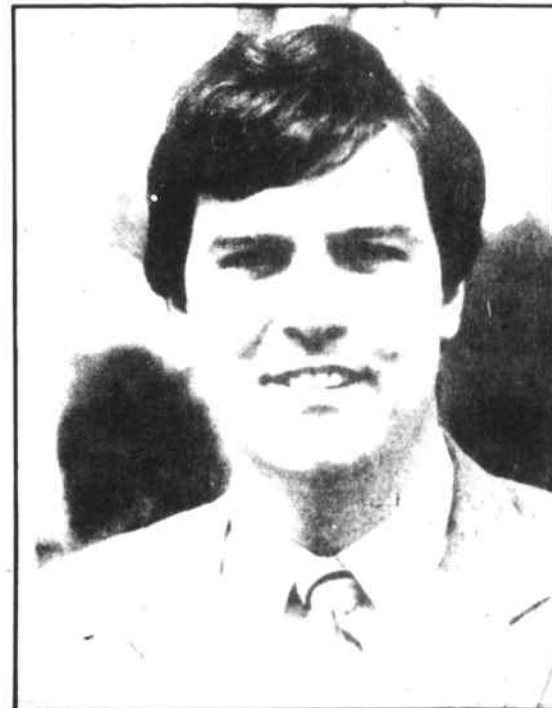

He's gained the experience to do the job right!

He's fought to earn your trust!

• As Executive Assistant to the Middlesex County Commissioners, Bill Gustus stopped irresponsible financial maneuvers in order to save taxpayers' money. He saved $250,000 in health insurance costs for each of the past three years, and prevented the sale of the vacant Third District Courthouse, valued at over $1 million, to a private developer for $175,000. County budgets prepared by Bill Gustus lowered taxes for cities and towns from $23 million in 1981 to $17 million in 1984.

• During his first nine months, Bill Gustus has restored stability and integrity to the office of Middlesex County Treasurer. He has earned nearly a half-million dollars in interest from the investment of county funds, while his predecessor, and chief opponent in this election, earned only slightly more than $5,000 during his first nine months. As Chairman of the Middlesex County Retirement Board, Bill Gustus has upgraded the system's $80 million portfolio with a professional management program.

• Bill Gustus has brought strong character and commitment to public service. He served in the Peace Corps in Malaysia for two years, and is a graduate of Wilmington High School, Wesleyan University and the New England School of Law. Bill Gustus resides in Wilmington with his wife, Terry, and their three children.

Patten's patented flowers were root of nation's carnations

by Capt. Larz Neilson

The Princess Dagmar carnation, introduced by Marcellus A. Patten of Tewksbury in 1912, proved to be a sensation. Another Patten flower, produced by Patten and introduced about this time was the Mikado.

Both were shown in England by M.A. Patten and both were registered by the Perpetual Carnation Society of England. The society recommended the flowers to English growers.

Harold J. Patten, son of Marcellus, was part of the firm in 1912. He took part in the exhibition in Boston, when the Princess Dagmar was so acclaimed.

H.J.P., as he called himself, there met the Honorable John F. "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald, mayor of Boston and grandfather to the late President John F. Kennedy. It was an incident that H.J.P. never forgot.

Honey Fitz was present to make the awards to M.A. Patten. Afterward, as always happened when Honey Fitz was present, he was asked to sing Sweet Adeline. That song and Honey Fitz went together in the popular lore of the day.

When Honey Fitz got to the chorus H.J.P. pitched in with his tenor voice. Honey Fitz then made H.J.P. stand beside him and they sang together. It was a moment H.J.P. never forgot.

It was sometime after that that William Sim, the man who started the carnation growers on their way toward hybridization lost his property in Cliftondale, Saugus. He had to sell out.

Sim moved to North Berwick, Maine, where his son Alan had two fine greenhouses. He continued his work there, having taken many fine seedlings with him from Saugus.

Alan Sim was shipping carnations to the Boston market. From time to time he would visit the Patten greenhouses in Tewksbury. This was after Marcellus Patten had retired, and Harold was the man who was running the business.

One occasion Alan told Harold that, for some reason, he was not able to sell enough flowers on the Boston market. He felt concerned lest his greenhouses too, were to be lost to the family.

Alan and Harold discussed the

H.J.P.'s finest

Harold J. Patten of Tewksbury, shown with the William Sim and the White Sim carnations. The reds are the William Sim, the work of that man, and the whites are the White Sim, produced in the Patten greenhouses from plants originally grown by William Sim.

possibility of growing some of the Sim plants in the Patten greenhouses.

One thousand seedlings, from William Sim, could be sent to Tewksbury. There could be 250 varieties in those thousand plants.

William Sim arrived in Tewksbury in the following week and agreed to the idea. In spite of his losses, Sim still had hopes for the future, and still hoped to some day produce the carnation that would be the best in the country, and be so recognized by the American Carnation Society.

Harold Patten cultivated the Sim plants. He prevailed upon William Sim to discard many of the varieties, and to concentrate on 10 plants, plants which seemed to show the most promise.

In one of those plants, as the work continued, Harold noted that a certain petal was always white. Harold recognized that that color had once been in the plant, and he cultivated the flower with that thought in mind. Eventually an all white carnation was produced. Harold named it the White Sim.

And, after nearly 40 years of work, William Sim produced an all red carnation that satisfied him, and the American Carnation Society as being the plant for which they had been looking. The year was 1939.

William Sim passed on after that. He never knew the sensation his latest carnation was to produce. It had been the flower for which he had worked so many years.

It was Harold Patten who asked the Sim family if the flower could be named the William Sim.

The flower was first shown at the Patten greenhouses, in a carnation show which was called "New Varieties Day." The William Sim was awarded top honors. It proved to be the finest carnation ever grown, and today there are many varieties grown all over the world which are descendants of the William Sim.

Harold Patten, in agreement with the Sim family, then patented the flower. It was a move to protect those carnation growers who had been involved in the work. All agreed it was necessary.

Application was made in February 1945, to the U.S. Patent Office Plant Patent 669, the William Sim carnation, was granted. The flower was described in full, in a long document. Part of the description said it had stems three and one-half to four and one-half feet long and it was a plant that could be forced to bloom at Christmas time.

Wallace R. Sim, administrator of the William Sim estate assigned the patent to Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

In April of 1978 I presented to the Board of Selectmen, Board of Health and Town Manager a petition signed by over 150 citizens and taxpayers of the Town of Wilmington. This petition requested of the Town of Wilmington and Board of Health that they furnish and make public complete information regarding storage of toxic, hazardous and explosive materials and the type of materials being transported on our streets in both residential and commercial areas of Wilmington.

This information was requested because of the danger to our environment and the possibility of a leak or industrial accident.

Over the years I have requested on many occasions information regarding underground tanks at service stations, industry and public buildings located throughout the community of Wilmington.

This petition, and other requests, by other active environmentalists have been ignored... and often times we were ridiculed and told there was no danger and the situation in Wilmington was being taken care of by the water department.

In Wilmington we rely on the 44 inches of annual rainfall to replenish our wells. The 44 inches of rain is equivalent to 11.5 billion gallons of water. About half of this, or 5.7 billion gallons, percolate into the ground. The remainder runs off into the streams. The water department pumps one billion gallons of water per year. The problem in Wilmington is not finding water, but rather finding permeable sand and gravel deposits which will allow the water that is in the ground to be pumped out and in addition to keep pollutants out of our ground water supply. And further, protect the water supply we have, from contamination.

There are over 70 underground tanks, storing an average of from 5,000 to 30,000 gallons of fuel oil and gasoline. These figures are according to registration at town hall. These tanks, the majority of them are within warranty and some of them have been in the ground as far back as 1938!!

Come on folks, common sense would tell you there exists a real danger to our water supply. It is past time for you as citizens to not only speak up, but demand that these tanks be taken out of the ground and replaced. Yes, taken out of the ground and replaced!!

After speaking to several professional tank cleaning and maintenance companies, they have informed me, tanks this old may check out fine one year and a gigantic spill be found the following year. This is exactly what happened in the case of the high school. According to the town manager and all concerned, the tank at the high school was tested last year.

WHAT CAN YOU DO? The success of a water quality program depends on effective local action. Repeat, you cannot leave this up to EPA or local government. Citizen participation and education is needed. There is a group of people who have been concerned for many years and have been trying to get more people involved. You cannot afford to sit by and let someone else speak up. If you are interested in protecting the water supply of Wilmington and serving on a watch dog committee please contact me for more information. Time has run out as we have seen by the leak and the enormous expense. Can we afford $400,000 times 70? I think not, industry must also participate and clean up their act NOW.

Recent data released by the EPA warns that pollution of underground water supplies is becoming a serious national problem. And we environmentalists contend that safeguards have been ignored. This ground water pollution comes from waste dumps, gasoline tanks, fuel oil and chemical and pesticide tanks stored underground.

The EPA has stated that of that 75,000 to 100,000 underground tanks that are over 15 years old are leaking 50 million gallons of fuel oil into the ground annually. We have 70 of those tanks in Wilmington and have already had a major leak... one that has been reported and cleaned up!

Politics reared its head time and time again with local candidates promising to do something about the odors in South Wilmington, the ground water situation... and those same politicians have done very little if anything but "be outspoken" as it states on the campaign literature of one currently running for office. To talk of expense after the fact doesn't cut it with me where was the prevention.

WHAT YOU CAN DO: Please join this fight to protect our ground water supply joins Wilmington's new EPA Environmental Protection Association and attend the Board of Selectmen meeting on September 10. You have an Acquirer Protection Task Force. It is time we hear from them regarding recommendations.

Hanging in there,
Anne Linehan

From the Town Hall to the State House, he has represented the people of this district with integrity and a solid record of accomplishment. Tewksbury board seeks clearer look at budget, water pictures

Although Tewksbury's financial picture seems to look a bit brighter, it still needs a little more focusing before it becomes crystal clear.

Selectmen are hoping they'll get a better look at the budget picture next week when they are scheduled to meet once again with the town's financial officers to discuss how much the town's fiscal 1985 budget is over the limits of Prop. 2½.

Finance committee estimates released at the end of the annual town meeting last May put the town budget over the limits of Prop. 2½ by about $700,000 to $800,000. But, because of recently received additional state aid and hard data coming in on other funding sources, the figure could go as low as $200,000 to $300,000 over the limits, according to Selectman Tom Girard.

The assessors, Girard said, are putting the finishing touches on their calculations and are almost set to seek state approval of a fiscal 1985 tax rate.

In addition to discussing the financial figures, the board, according to Chairman Paul Sullivan, will also discuss next week setting a date for a special town meeting to cut the budget. That action would mean the earliest the meeting could be called would be in the first week of October.

The board, Sullivan said, is also likely to discuss when a special town meeting to deal with the nagging water supply issue will be called. However, the board will apparently set up a separate town meeting to deal with the water issue alone.

Selectmen are expected to present several options for solving the water problem before the town meeting including building the town's own water treatment plant, building treatment plants to treat existing town wells, or buy larger amounts of Lowell water. All three options include continued use of some of the town's wells.

In addition to those options, Selectmen Tom Girard will continue pursuing a plan that would see the town adopt a water district. That water district would place the entire cost of providing water to the town on the water rate, thus lessening the amount of taxes that has to be raised, argues Girard. It would also provide for a much better water service as the town's water district would not have to depend on the limited amount of funds the town can raise under Prop. 2½. The water district concept he said, "is an intricate part of a total package" to solve the town's water problems.

A bill passed by the state legislature in 1919 allowed the town to establish water and fire districts, Girard said, would not help in 1984 because that bill specified that only certain sections of town could set up a water district.

Girard also said that because a water district would not be place to help the town deal with the financing of a water solution this year, he and fellow board member Bill Hallisey are continuing to work on a plan to seek upfront money from industry in town.

The pair were appointed several weeks ago to a sub-committee to investigate the possibility of gaining industrial financial support that would lessen the burden on the town. That support, Girard explained, could come in the form of a large payment upfront in return for a reduction in future water bills. In essence, the idea is to ask industry to pay for the water they'll be using in future years in one year.

Girard said that he has a list of the town's 15 largest water users and is currently working on putting together a total package to solve the water problem before he and Hallisey bring the concept to industrial users in town. When that package is complete, he said, businessmen will have a better idea of what the town is asking them to do.

Tewksbury Town Clerk explains absentee voting procedure

The Tewksbury Board of Selectmen has scheduled the following polling hours for the Tuesday, September 18 Primary: 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

But, voters who cannot make it to the polls can vote by absentee ballot.

Following are some guidelines for voting by absentee ballot.

Voters may vote absentee if they are a registered voter and will be unable to vote at the polls on election day because of absence from town during the hours the polls are open, or because of physical disability, or religious beliefs.

Voters must request an application for an absentee ballot before the election. A written request for an absentee ballot must be made to the offices of the town clerk no later than noon of the day before the election.

Applications may be mailed or hand delivered. Voters may request the official application form or use any form of written communication (letter, or postcard). Include on the application your name as registered, your registration address, the precise address to which you wish the ballot sent, the party ballot a registered Independent wishes for the primary election and your own signature. Applicants must sign their own requests personally.

Requesting to vote by mail Be sure to apply early as the ballot must be sent by mail and returned by mail before the polls close on election day.

Absentee ballots cannot be hand carried to the voter and the voter cannot hand carry the ballot to the town clerk's office or the polls. Absentee ballots must be mailed and postmarked both ways. Return postage must be paid by the voter. A ballot will be sent to any address you specify, including your own home address.

Requesting to vote in person If you choose, you may request to vote in person before noon of the day before the election. You may fill out an application for an absentee ballot and vote at the town hall during the same visit. Town clerk office hours are Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Tuesday evening from 7 to 8:30.

Notarization

Most absentee voters must have their ballot envelopes notarized. The only exceptions are permanently disabled voters who have a letter on file in the town clerk's office from their physician, stating that they are permanently unable to cast their vote at the polling place because of physical disability and Massachusetts residents who are absentee voters outside the United States. Both exceptions still need to request a ballot, in writing, before each election.

Student ballot envelopes may either be notarized or signed by the registrar or assistant registrar of the college or university they are attending.

You may vote privately in the presence of a notary who may not see how you vote or discuss your choices. A candidate may not notarize your ballot. Massachusetts notaries may not charge for this service. It is up to the absentee voter to arrange to have a notary present.

Read all the instructions that are enclosed with your absentee ballot before you mark your ballot. Return your absentee ballot promptly by mail.

Welcome Wagon

"A Congressman who delivers more than he promises."

"When we needed somebody to help us control the air pollution caused by the asbestos dump at Iron Horse Park, we went to Ed Markey. Because he was a leader in getting the Superfund toxic cleanup law through Congress, he was instrumental in helping Billerica get a $960,000 grant to clean up a terrible health hazard. Ed Markey deserves a lot of thanks for that."

Michael Rea, State Representative, Billerica

"In 1981, the Reagan Administration announced it would move the Federal Aviation Administration out of Burlington. What a blow that would have been to our local economy. Ed Markey took the lead in fighting that decision. And he won. The Reagan Administration backed down and Burlington kept 250 jobs, a $21 million payroll and a $1.2 million tax base."

James Melchionna, Chairman, Board of Selectmen, Burlington

"It was Ed Markey who saw to it that Chelsea got the federal backing to develop the abandoned Naval Hospital site. Ed worked hard to make sure we got a $6.7 million grant for this project and $11.3 million to revitalize the whole waterfront. We estimate this effort will help bring in $85 million in private investment, 425 permanent jobs and 3100 construction jobs."

Joel Pressman, Former Mayor, Chelsea

"For years the General Electric plant in Everett did not have to pay property taxes because the land and buildings were owned by the U.S. Air Force. Ed Markey spearheaded the vital negotiations with the Air Force which will result in the sale of this property to General Electric. Very shortly this will bring more than $250,000 a year to Everett... a move that is going to benefit all the taxpayers of the city."

John Krysovich, City Solicitor, Everett

"American foreign policy is a major concern to the voters in Lexington. We asked Ed Markey to help us understand what is going on in Central America. He brought together past and present administration officials, as well as other policy experts, to discuss all sides of the issue. His efforts have given us a chance to learn about the situation and to express our views first hand."

Kay Tiffany, Civic Leader, Lexington

"In Malden, our aging neighborhoods have received tremendous support from Ed Markey and the entire downtown has been completely revitalized thanks to him. He's worked hard to support housing improvements... over $29 million in Community Development Block Grants have come in to restore, renovate, weatherize and modernize existing housing. And then there's the $3.5 million in low interest loans he helped secure for the elderly, persons on fixed incomes and young people just starting out."

James Hennessey, City Councillor, Malden

"Medford is the most populated town in Ed Markey's district. Because he recognizes that, he's been a real help in bringing back more than $6 million in federal funds to subsidize housing for low income families and the elderly, to renovate and improve existing units and to create hundreds of construction jobs. And his help in getting other funds has allowed us to revitalize the entire downtown area."

Fred Dello Russo, Deputy Mayor, Medford

"Our dream was to restore the original Victorian character of Main Street in Melrose and to revive our downtown business area. Ed Markey deserves a lot of credit for helping us get the $6 million in federal funds to do it. Our renewal has been so successful that it has become a national model for downtown revitalization."

Ron Nolte, Former Program and Projects Manager, Melrose

"We wanted to do something to keep our elderly residents from being pushed out of Reading... Ed Markey worked on this with us and with developers, state officials, and the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development... The result: the Cedar Glen Elderly Housing Project... 114 units of affordable, attractive and secure housing for the elderly and handicapped."

Marvin Rosenthal, Former Chairman, Board of Selectmen, Reading

Ed Markey
Congressman

"There are 25 million good reasons to vote for Ed Markey - the $25 million Revere has received in federal funds thanks to him. From the $5.5 million in Urban Development Action Grants to the reconstruction of the Revere Post Office and support for home improvements for low-income families... Ed has been our strongest advocate. Currently, he's helping secure more than $1 million to revitalize Revere Beach."

George Colella, Mayor, Revere

"It was Ed Markey who helped us get $5.5 million in federal funds to revitalize Route 28 - one of the largest highway improvement projects in the state. Ed has also been instrumental in pushing the Environmental Protection Agency for money to upgrade water quality and sewage treatment in Stoneham."

Charles Houghton, Former Chairman, Board of Selectmen, Stoneham

"We knew of Ed Markey's special commitment to the environment. So we asked for his help in closing a private dump on South Street in Tewksbury. It had been a major headache for years... with truck traffic endangering the small children in the neighborhood and air and groundwater pollution threatening the health of nearby residents. With Ed's help we closed it."

Beth Neudel, Chairperson, C.H.I.L.D., Tewksbury

"When the recession was devastating small businesses around the country, Ed Markey was working with us in Wakefield to secure more than $4 million in low interest commercial financing for local firms. Through his efforts we not only saved jobs, we created more than 90 new jobs. And no one should forget the $300,000 Ed Markey helped us get for local housing projects."

Al Minahan, State Representative, Wakefield

"Ed Markey has been our Congressman for only two years, but his help has already been vital in Wilmington and Tewksbury, especially with the attention he has paid to the elderly and their special needs. Ed was also a big help in arranging for Industrial Revenue Bonds that provided below-market financing for area businesses that helped create 200 new jobs."

James Miceli, State Representative, Wilmington/Tewksbury

"Our Chamber of Commerce wanted to fight the unfair telephone rate structure that doubled rates for our local businesses. Ed Markey joined that fight. He assisted in efforts to bring about a special investigation of the problem, he arranged for an expert to testify at a special hearing, and is working in his capacity as a member of the Telecommunications Subcommittee in Washington to reform these unfair pricing structures."

Salvador Porras, Former V.P., Chamber of Commerce, Winchester

"Ed Markey has taken a personal role in making sure the future of the Deer Island Treatment Plant is not made without the full input of the people of Winthrop. He is behind us all the way - just like he was earlier when he helped change Logan Airport's runway configuration to reduce noise over Winthrop."

Peggy Riley, Founder, The Citizen Action Group, Winthrop

"When the problems with two toxic waste sites first became known, it was Ed Markey on the scene taking action. He came directly to the citizens and asked about our concerns and what we thought he should do. He followed through by having the Woburn sites listed as a #1 priority for cleanup under the Superfund law... $1 million has already been allocated. Ed Markey follows through on his commitments."

Students faced challenges of the sea

"It is now close to sunset, or sunrise — which I am not sure. I needed to sleep, but am used to little sleep. I put my money on morning. There is no way to tell — no sense of direction, no map, no nothing — not even a tide schedule."

The words are not from Robinson Crusoe, but are from a diary kept by a Wilmington High School senior, Mike Pittaro, along with classmate David Hanson, recently spent three weeks in the rugged Outward Bound program at Hurricane Island in Maine. Located in Penobscot Bay, the program is one of 28 Outward Bound programs operating on five continents.

The Outward Bound schools originated in Wales as training for young men entering the merchant marine, to prepare them for the hazards of maritime service. Participants spend three weeks sailing, navigating, swimming, rock climbing and scratching for survival while sailing the coast of Maine, among some of the more remote islands on the East Coast.

The seven programs in the United States are now used more for personal development than for training merchant mariners. The challenges in the program give the individual the opportunity to learn about himself and other people.

The two Wilmington youths entered the program through the WHS athletic department, the first Wilmington students to participate in the program. After completing a paper on the subject, each will receive four credits in physical education. Arrangements were made by Athletic Director Jim Gillis, Safety Officer Bob Shelley and Juvenile Officer Bob Spencer.

Outward Bound offers extremes in isolation and in involvement. Students must live with a dozen others in a 30 foot boat, and then spend four days in solitude on an island, with minimal equipment.

Pittaro and Hanson both kept diaries. Pittaro's contains a significant expression of personal feelings. Hanson's was more factual.

"We are now in a boat 30 feet long," Pittaro wrote on Day One, July 16. "There are 13 of us. I am still slightly damp and uncomfortable from the afternoon rain. The people around me are from all over the states — Illinois, Ohio, California. It is approaching darkness and we are anchored in a bay. I am sitting on the bow, catching a cool breeze and watching the beautiful surroundings."

Not your typical vacation

It was a summer to remember for Michael Pittaro and David Hanson, who spent three weeks with Outward Bound on the coast of Maine.

Other comments under Day One give an idea of the hardships they would be under. "Dinner was the pits. Mac & Cheese. I put soy sauce on it and couldn't finish it." "They just told us we go in a bucket or over the side. I'm not going for five days — or 'til we hit land."

"I am starting to become uncomfortable in a boat," he wrote on Day Two, "yet it is becoming more like home. Confinement is driving me batty. I will, however, survive and be damn proud of it."

"Evening — God almighty! It rained. I was wet, cold and very miserable. I barely kept from going nuts. I needed something to strike back at but couldn't find the target to strike. I considered quitting — but how can you? I'm in a boat and taxis aren't handy. Now I'm semi-dry and somewhat warm. I guess I'll keep going on — but it will be tough. In two days we'll be at Hurricane Island — as close to civilization that I will see in 2½ weeks. Wet, wet, wet."

Life on the boat included such luxuries as sleeping on oars, rising daily at 5 a.m. and being assigned watch. "Watch walked a line between a philosophical and beautiful experience and an hour of bore. I guess it's just how you view it. I picked out constellations and looked at the moon. It was peaceful," Pittaro wrote.

The students began their four-day solo on the eighth day of the program. They were each given a tarp, a drop line, a small first aid kit, two flags, red and white — two tin cans, 10-15 matches, and two small brownie-like candy bars. They also took a flashlight, sunscreen and burn lotion, insect repellent, tooth brush and paste, a rain outfit and a sleeping bag. Each student was taken to a separate island.

After exploring the island, Pittaro set up the tarp as a tent. He also ate the first "solo bar," as it was called. He collected some mussels, but was too tired to cook them.

When he awoke, he had no idea of the time, and it was then that he wrote the paragraph which leads this story.

Two yachters, an English couple, stopped at the island. Their dog gave Pittaro a scare, since he thought he was alone on the island. From them he found out that it was 7 p.m., and still the first day of his solo. He ate the second solo bar.

The four-day solo was a vacation from rising at 5 a.m., but it was also very boring. He fasted much of the time, with only a few clams and mussels on the second day.

On the third day, he wrote, "I have nothing in my stomach except for water. I just ate yesterday to prove I could. I feel slightly weak and light-headed."

Waiting for the boat on the fourth day, he wrote, "I can't ever remember being this weak. I hope I can hold food down when I get back."

Later: "My God, the hunger is over! I am so skinny! We ate at a cookout, I had five hot dogs." "Food, however bad, never tasted so good."

One of the tougher experiences was rock climbing. "I just did climbing in afternoon. Have bloody knuckles, so tired my muscles shake. I did the chimney, layback, then the walking whale. (ladders) I almost cried 2X. I knew I couldn't go on. I made it by the hair."

A few days later, on the second day of a six day boat trip, Pittaro wrote of being very depressed. "Who am I? Where am I going? Days like today (annoy me) to no end. There is nothing in particular to annoy me, and that makes things worse. I am not the person I hope I am or think I am. I am just me, emphasis on just. It's a disquieting thought. I always thought I was more. Maybe this is just depression talking, maybe not."

The next day was completely different. "Now I feel great. We're at Acadia National Park. Just ran to a lake and dipped. The water was beautiful."

As the three-week period neared its end, Pittaro began to express some of feelings like: "I now appreciate my life more, my home and family. Working with a group has been interesting. You have to ask different people for favors just to go across the boat. I feel like withdrawing from the group for a while."

On Day 18, he wrote: "I would go absolutely nuts if I had to live like this all the time. It is to be endured, not to be a lifestyle. There are, however, some great moments. The past 20 days don't seem real."

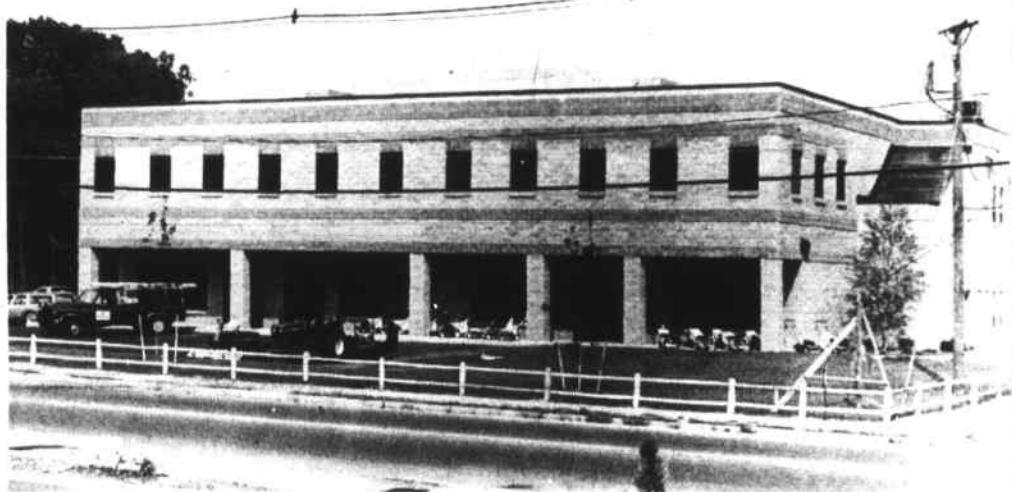

"Already I can tell that it will be hard to adjust back to normal life. Some things like bathrooms, soft warm beds and food I am accustomed to will be easier than leaving my pseudo-family, one of the best groups of people it has been my privilege to eat, sleep, sail, climb, run, dip, (etc.) with."

The last two days of the program were spent back at Hurricane Island, rock climbing one day and running a marathon the next, along with other activities.

"I start to feel sad about leaving here and my friends. It all comes to an end. Que sera sera. Adios amigos, via con Dios."

Stelio's Over-35 champions

Born-again team rolls to title

"We've already planned next year," said Jack Calandrello. And planning was the key to a league championship for the Stelio's softball team in Wilmington's Over 35 League.

While many softball teams took a relaxed attitude toward their games, the Stelio's team was highly organized, even using a computer to pinpoint strengths and weaknesses.

"They laughed at us for using a computer," said Rick Froton, co-manager with Calandrello. But it worked like a charm, as a 15-2 season would indicate.

The Stelio's team racked up a 13-2 record in regular season play, with a 2-0 record in the playoffs.

The league began last year as an over-30 league, but became an over-35 league this year, with six teams playing every Tuesday night.

Froton credits commissioner Jack Cushing with giving them a chance to play in a fun-filled, competitive league. Froton said Cushing has organized one of the finest leagues in the state.

With a team of players no longer in their prime, one goal is to eliminate injuries. "If you go in there unprepared, something has got to happen," said Calandrello.

One key to injury prevention has been diet, especially just before a game.

One of the biggest accomplishments was to bring together a group of 12 individuals to work as a team, with no internal problems. Positive attitude gives the team a tremendous competitive edge, supporting each other instead of criticizing.

Practice was held each Sunday morning, carefully planned to include specific periods for various specialized areas, such as baserunning, fielding, hitting and double plays.

Over 35 champions

Stelio's recently clinched the Wilmington Over-35 Softball League championship. Kneeling, l-r: John O'Melia, Jim Kennedy, Jack Calandrello, Ron Barber, Harold Blake and Ken Sugarman. Standing, l-r: Rusty Huebner, Walter Welding, Steve Cail, Rick Froton, Bob Kelly and Kevin Field.

The organizing, practicing and work all paid off - the team only lost two games. The first loss was the first game of the season, against last year's champions, McNamara Tire, 11-10. Stelio's then beat Mac's twice during regular season play and a third time in the playoffs, 6-1.

The final victory was on August 28, a game in which the tail end of the lineup came through. The McNamara team had scouted the top of the order, but was unprepared for players who did not stand out as the big guns.

Batting seventh, Jim Kennedy went three for three, while Kenny Sugarman had three hits batting at the bottom of the order.

Meanwhile, John O'Melia was pitching a four-hitter helped by his club's errorless defensive play.

"We showed them that hard work pays off," said Calandrello.

Four members of the team batted .500 or better, led by Rick Froton with a .571 average. Calandrello batted .522, Rusty Huebner .511 and Walter Welding .500.

Three others batted in the high .400's. And the season was outstanding even for the players with lower averages, each of whom exceeded his own expectations, both at the plate and in the field. Ron Barber, for instance, playing shortstop for the first time, handled a difficult job very well.

Kevin Field, who hadn't played ball in years, had an exceptional year. Defensively, he sparked, even starting a double play from his shortfield position.

Other standouts were Bobby Kelley and Steve Cail, who usually hit the ball hard enough to put fear in the hearts of anyone standing on the wrong side of home plate.

Putting their spikes, gloves and computer aside, the team is now preparing for next season by thanking their wives for being gracious enough to allow them the time it took to coordinate a winning team.

Sports editor's note: For a look another veteran softball star, see page 11 of the sports section.

Wildcats WHS coach Ed Harrison (center) and his staff hope to improve on their 5-5 football slate starting with the season opener September 15.

Orioles claim championship

Tewksbury's Youth Baseball Orioles rolled to yet another league championship recently with a 3-0 victory over the National League champion Colts.

Tim Beddard pitched a two-hitter for the champions, striking out seven and walking only two batters.

Billy Thompson snapped a 0-0 standoff in the top of the third inning when his single drove Beddard home from thirdbase with two outs.

Dave Perry delivered a big blow in the fifth inning with a two-run triple.

Defensive standouts for the Orioles were secondbaseman Mike Carfagno, shortstop George DeGregorio and thirdbaseman Billy Scanlon.

Relief pitcher D. Boudreau was solid in the top of the third inning when his single drove Beddard home from thirdbase

Eddie Feigner still softball's 'King'

Lowell Softball League champion Tighe Club faced a pitcher over 60 years of age several weeks ago, and had their share of difficulties.

No, the hurler wasn't a local veteran out to work up a thirst in league action. The 'old man' was Eddie Feigner, unquestionably the greatest softball pitcher in the history of the sport.

Feigner has been barnstorming the country and the world with his softball caravan "The King and his Court" for 39 years and shows no sign of letting up.

"The King" is a fundraiser extraordinaire, making his round from April to approximately November each year.

Amazing records

Cy Young won 511 baseball games in his career, an amazing total. Feigner, who religiously keeps the records that he displays in an impressive publicity brochure, says that he has over 5,720 career victories.

He also has over 3,000 shutouts, 250 complete games, 107,000 strikeouts, 781 no-hitters, 220 perfect games in over 11,000 exhibitions in some 4,000 cities.

Now, I know you're probably saying, sure, the guy is good, much like the Harlem Globetrotters in that he puts on a good show against inferior competition.

That, all you softball faithful, is fantasy. Feigner at over 60 years of age is blinding excellent softball players decades younger.

Not only is Feigner firing away from the standard softball mound, but he's pitching blindfolded, behind his back and from secondbase with deadly accuracy. All this at speeds ranging over 90 miles an hour. At one time, in his youth at 40 or 50, Feigner could chuck the melon at speeds close to 100 miles per hour.

Hero of the working stiffs

Feigner is most definitely the hero of the working stiffs, a class that makes up the heart of most softball crowds.

"The King and his Court" often will play an inner-city team and follow that up with a backwoods contest across the country.

"I lost count of most of my records," says Feigner before pointing them out in his brochure. The former Marine from Walla Walla Washington was pitching softballs at age nine and by age 14 he was hurling windmill style for men's softball teams. So, its no wonder that "The King" has become an artist at work when it comes to softball.

Chose softball over baseball

Feigner chose softball over baseball in the post-depression era of the 1940's for economic reasons.

Still the best

The King Eddie Feigner uncorks a pitch in one of his 225 games per season. The 60-year-old Feigner has been pitching softball around the world since 1946.

"The baseball player wasn't making all that much at that time, but if you could throw a softball, you could get a good job with a company and the boss sometimes would slip you 20 bucks," noted Feigner.

Feigner combined the Marine Corps with college extension courses (he has an IQ of 146 to go with his cat-like reflexes) before hitting the job market while playing softball on the side.

Feigner has worked as an accountant, a logger, a truck driver and a crane operator over the course of his 60-plus years.

Sweeping delivery
Feigner picked up his sweeping delivery as a young man while watching the famous House of David and the Black Monarch teams.

He then began whipping the melon blindfolded, behind his back and between his legs. Feigner has often picked unsuspecting runners off firstbase with behind-the-back tosses from the pitchers' mound.

"Once I threw the ball the length of a football field and hit the uprights," he says with understandable pride.

Feigner knows that he had the athletic ability to play other sports, but deep down feels he made the perfect career decision, despite the several months a year he spends seeing the country in a camper.

"I couldn't possibly have done in baseball what I've done in softball. It got me good jobs and here I am still going strong. In earnings I rate in the top 20 in all sports and I've still got some good years left."

Just three teammates

Feigner throughout most of his career has relied on only three fielders, just to keep things interesting.

This past season "The Court" consisted of catcher Jim Mackin, shortstop Dave Barnett and veteran first baseman and crew comic Gary West.

Up until this past year, Feigner's son J.R. was a member of the club before deciding to attend law school. Barnett has some professional baseball experience and has done some college coaching.

Played before 16 million people

"I must have played before some 16 million people over 38 years," notes Feigner. "I was the fastest pitcher in the world at one time and pitched for some great teams."

There really have been only three or four arms like

Feigner's in history. His right arm bulges in comparison with his left. "I'm supposed to donate it to science when I die," he said. "I guess you'd call this a developed talent. You're born with a certain ammount of talent, but you have to develop it. If that wasn't the case, every pitcher would be a major leaguer and every golfer playing at scratch."

An old firehorse

Feigner and his wife Vibeke travel the country nearly eight months out of every year, and at his age you'd think that Feigner would be slowing down.

"I'm hooked like an old firehorse, I guess," he explained. There is some talk about a movie and a book. It just seems to get bigger and better every year."

More than just a fastball

Feigner has more than just a fastball, having fanned the likes of major leaguers Harmon Killebrew, Mickey Mantle and Al Kaline. He has an assortment of risers, sinkers, curves and even a softball slider.

There are as many as 30 different pitches and just about the same number of windups and releases.

Weather is no object either. "I've pitched on every type of field in all kinds of weather. There's been rain, sleet, snow, blinding sun. You name it and I've experienced it. I don't think there is a town that I haven't pitched in either."

Feigner does not appear to be tiring at all. "I don't tire more than any other 60 year old. A carpenter at my age gets tired after a day's work. It's the same with me."

The King Eddie Feigner hopes to continue pitching for many years.

Physical ability

The bottom line with Feigner is probably his physical ability to do things athletically that other men are just not capable of doing.

"I think one of the reasons for my success is my eyesight. I can spot a fly on a sign 300 feet away. Plus I have unusually good hand-eye-ear equilibrium coordination."

"When I was in the Marine Corps, they gave us a recognition test where they showed us 1,000 aircraft, each in a thousandth of a second flash." Feigner says he didn't miss a single aircraft, and you believe him when he says it.

Not just softball

This is not just softball, but true entertainment. The King and his Court have taken 75 foreign tours, where softball often is a very strange game indeed.

The team has played at Yankee Stadium, Dodger Stadium and the Astrodome, often playing 225 games during their April to November run.

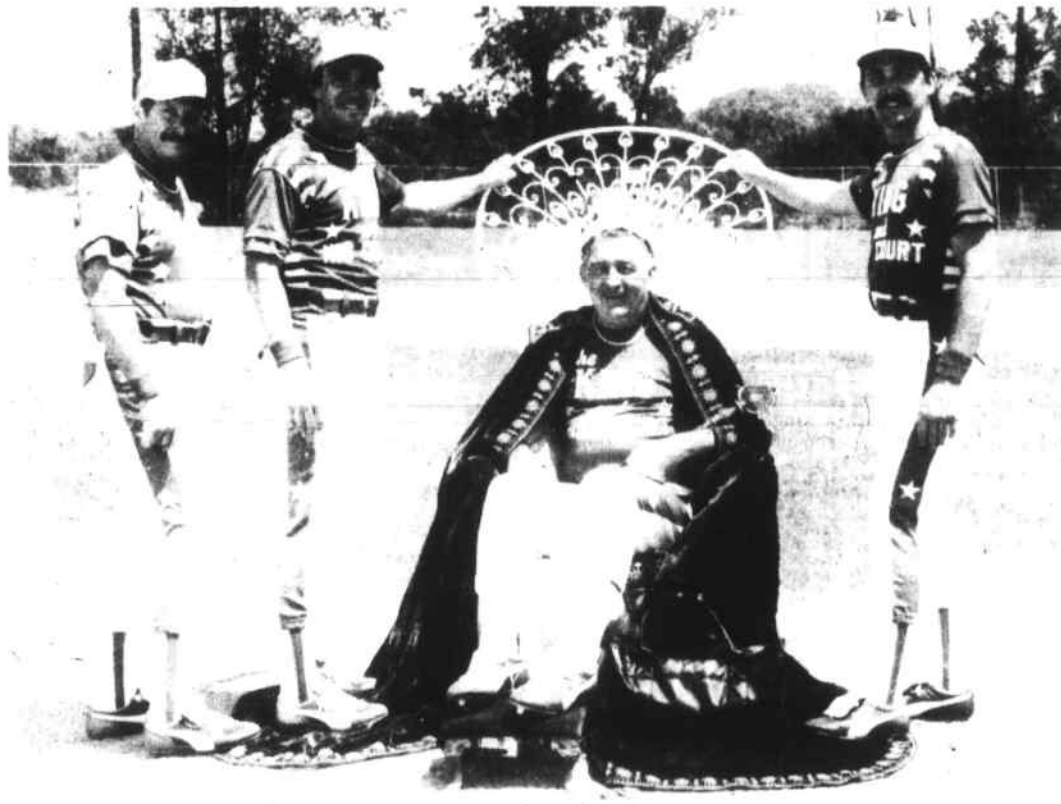

Feigner and his crew may play in foreign lands and in professional stadiums, but they are just as willing to play in a local softball ballyard, and almost always it contributes to a good cause.

"The King" just doesn't get tired. Anyone who loves the game of softball should hope that he doesn't grow weary of the sport in the future. Because "The King" is still the best.

Basketball registration

The Tewksbury Boys' Youth Basketball League will hold registration for the 1984-1985 season at the Tewksbury Town Hall. Registration dates are Friday, September 14, Wednesday, September 19 and Friday, September 21 between 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. Please bring a copy of the boys' birth certificates.

Sons of Italy race

Derrah blazes to victory

The Wilmington Sons of Italy held its second successful road race Saturday, August 4. All proceeds from the road race will be donated to the Merrimack Valley Chapter of the March of Dimes at the Wilmington Sons of Italy's monthly meeting in September.

The Second Annual Run for the March of Dimes covered 6.6 miles through Wilmington and Andover. Eighty-six runners started and completed the country course in front of the Wilmington Sons of Italy Lodge.

This year's race was different from last year's in three respects. An earlier starting time of 9 a.m. helped for a cooler start and finish for the runners; the course was reversed to insure runner safety with traffic; the runners would now be running the last four and one-half miles in shade; and a new divisional category was added, making six divisions in all.

Plaques were presented to each of the top female and male finishers in their respective divisions. This year's overall male finisher was Robert Derrah of Tewksbury, who finished with a new course record of 35:21.1, breaking the old record of 36:59.0 set last year by Tom Mixon of Amesbury.

The overall female winner, Jane Welzel of Sunderland, set a new record of 40:37.2, shattering the old record of 50:20.3 set by Marleen Lee of Tewksbury.

After the race runners and friends were welcomed to the Wilmington Sons of Italy Lodge for the awards ceremony. This was followed by a raffle for all road race entrants. The race provided a great time for runners and friends.

Overall winner: Robert Derrah, 35:21.1, Tewksbury.

Female winner: Jane Welzel, 40:37.2, Sunderland, Ma.

Under 14 male: Derrek Pauumbo, 47:27.9.

Fifteen-19, male: Robert Derrah.

Fifteen - 19, female: Doyle

Divino, 43:44.7, Andover Ma.

Twenty - 29, male: Pete Dillon, 38:07.7, Melrose, Ma.

Twenty - 29, female: Jane Welzel.

Thirty - 39, male: Terry Gallagher, 38:56.4, Arlington, Ma.

Thirty - 39, female: Christina Brennan, 50:51.6, Lowell, Ma.

Forty plus, male: Ben Fudge, 43:54.6, Tewksbury.

Forty plus, female: Jane Rasmussen, 52:08.0, Concord.

SOI male: Carl Capozzi, 45:25.8, Wilmington.

SOI female: Jayne Currier, 58:14.2, Wilmington.

TMHS gym applications

Organizations and individuals interested in the use of gymnasiums in the Tewksbury Public Schools this coming year (1984-85) are asked to fill out the necessary forms available at the Director of Athletics' office, Center School Annex, Pleasant Street, Tewksbury, by September 14. This office is open from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Tewksbury Public School athletic teams will receive top priority scheduling. These teams will supercede any and all scheduling conflicts. Questions should be directed to 851-6044.

Letter to the sports editor

Dear Rick:

I've hesitated writing a rebuttle to Mike Whelton Jr's letter that appeared in the Town Crier on August 15, but when I feel that some parents involved in the program are unaware that he was given an opportunity to coach in this program, I think that it is time that something is said on the matter.

I attended a board meeting in the spring in which the matter of coaches was brought up. Mike's name was brought up as coach of the B team, and I got the impression by attending that meeting that he would be voted to be the head coach of the B team.

I'd like to make note that his biggest supporter was Ed Blades.

The next day at a baseball game where both Mike and I were coaching, I asked him if he was going to coach with Pop Warner. He told me no, and I said that I thought the board was going to offer him the B team.

Mike said: "Under no circumstances would I coach with this group." I asked him if I could quote him on that, and he said yes. I then asked if he was sure about not coaching, and he nodded yes, he was sure.

I asked Mike because, as I explained at the time, I was interested in coaching the B team if he was not taking the job.

He stated at the time that he was not coaching, but instead was looking into other coaching possibilities. In particular, he mentioned the North Reading coaching vacancy.

On another night, I asked Mike about the letters that were sent to the head coaches. He told me he received his letter the previous week, but didn't have time to "worry about it now." He also mentioned at the time that he had offers from five other Pop Warner programs.

I told him the board was waiting for his response, and that it had received some return letters from the other coaches. Mike said he was "going on vacation and didn't have time to worry about it now."

Mike, be fair. You were given the same chance as everyone else, plus I reminded you and spoke to you about the coaching letters. For whatever reason you had, you chose not to respond.

The kids are the losers. There won't be any winners unless the kids get on the field.

Let's keep the facts straight. You were not 'removed' from the program.

Rick Harris,
Head Coach, B team

Freshmen get first look at new principal by Ann D. Linehan, parent member of High School P.A.C.

The freshman class of approximately 290 students met on Tuesday for orientation at Wilmington High School. Dr. Carol Sager was introduced by Principal Paul Fleming, newly appointed high school principal. In her opening remarks, Dr. Sager called on the freshmen "to meet the challenges of a new beginning." Dr. Sager reminded them that work would begin on the high school in spring of 1985 and that this would be the first graduating class from the renovated high school.

Mr. Fleming, stressed student and parent participation in the activities of the school and said "I expect to be the principal of Wilmington High School for at least the next 15 years."

Mr. Fleming's remarks were positive as he stressed the pride he had in this class and how respectful they had been. He introduced Eddie Woods, assistant principal of the high school and he particularly noted the surgeon general of the United States regarding the health hazards of smoking. "There will be NO smoking by students at Wilmington High School. No smoking will be allowed, period," Mr. Woods said emphatically.

Penalties are listed in the student handbook and I know you will go over them with your parents. Further, do not arrive for your bus more than five or ten minutes before bus time, and conduct yourselves in an orderly manner. No smoking on the buses either."

After introducing Mr. Woods, Mr. Fleming again spoke to the students regarding the excellent education being offered at Wilmington High and the dedication of the teachers who are committed to the advantages of a good education.

It was pointed out that a grade average of 70 will be required for participation in athletic and/or any extracurricular activities. Principal Fleming challenged the students to know who they are and stand up for their beliefs. He asked the students to listen up as he commented "If you respect and love your mother and father and participate on a regular basis in your religious persuasion, and you want to get a good education... stand up."

There was a moment of silence and no one stood up.

"I guarantee you before this year is out some of you will proudly stand up for the things I just mentioned and you will have enough pride and confidence in yourself not to let what the person seated next to you thinks hold you back."

"That is what our challenge will be here at Wilmington high, pride and confidence."

Mr. Lynch, assistant principal of Wilmington High School was introduced as the "veteran" of the group. In his opening remarks Mr. Lynch stressed a no nonsense attitude with complete support and help from any of the faculty - "We are here to help you get a good education."

The newly adopted drug and alcohol policy was discussed by Mr. Lynch and he said this information was being given before hand as required by law. "It is important for you to know the due process and why such penalties... just as you have a right to excellence in education."

Principal Fleming again spoke to the students and in closing he pointed out that when he came aboard the first thing he checked was the absentee rate... 50 percent, that means 50 percent of the student body was absent 15 days or more. Seven percent is a legitimate absentee rate.

"To me this high rate showed a lot of students just didn't want to go to school. I pledge to you that you have the right to want to come to school and be treated with respect. No teacher has the right to be rude to you and you don't have the right to be rude to any teacher."

Attendance and respect for one another seemed to be the theme of this orientation.

Loco Prentis was introduced to the students. In absence of parent.

"We are responsible for your well being from the time you leave home to come to school until the time you arrive home, and the staff of Wilmington High School and myself take this responsibility seriously. We are an extension of your parents' choices and concerns and we know your parents will cooperate with us for the good of your health and education. Mr. Fleming firmly told the students.

"I am not here to tell you jokes and make you laugh, I am here today to challenge you to the best you have in you, thank you and I look forward to great things from the Class of '88. We are the best high school in the state and we want everyone to know it. Let's reach for the sky."

So maximum learning and respect for one another set the theme for this year's freshmen.

"Jack Tars and Commodores"

By JIM ROUILLARD

The embryo is idea, the growing fetus nurtured by thought, painstaking research and a six-foot stack of note card — and the new infant is the author's fourth book — delivered after long, hard and loving labor.

The author is Northeastern Professor William M. Fowler Jr. of Reading, and the book "Jack Tars and Commodores: the American Navy 1783-1815," released this summer by Houghton Mifflin.

In his introduction, Dr. Fowler describes the infant American navy as the chief glory of the nation in the first quarter century of its existence. The book's jacket art is from "A Most Fortunate Ship," and "Jack Tars and Commodores" is a most fortunate read.

But neither the art nor the history is quite equal to a meeting with the author himself, whose ideas seem to spring from their creator's brain like Athena, Greek goddess of wisdom, from the head of her father, Zeus, with this important difference: Zeus is said to have brought forth Athena after a massive headache — whereas Dr. Fowler's books and ideas are clearly the process and product of joy.

"Jack Tars and Commodores" follows the development of the young navy as it grew in tandem with the young republic, between the end of the American Revolution and the conclusion of the War of 1812.

Though the book is fascinating, the interview with Bill Fowler was more fascinating still — in its uncovering of an optimist who is fervent in his love of history and his belief in the mighty potentials of democracy.

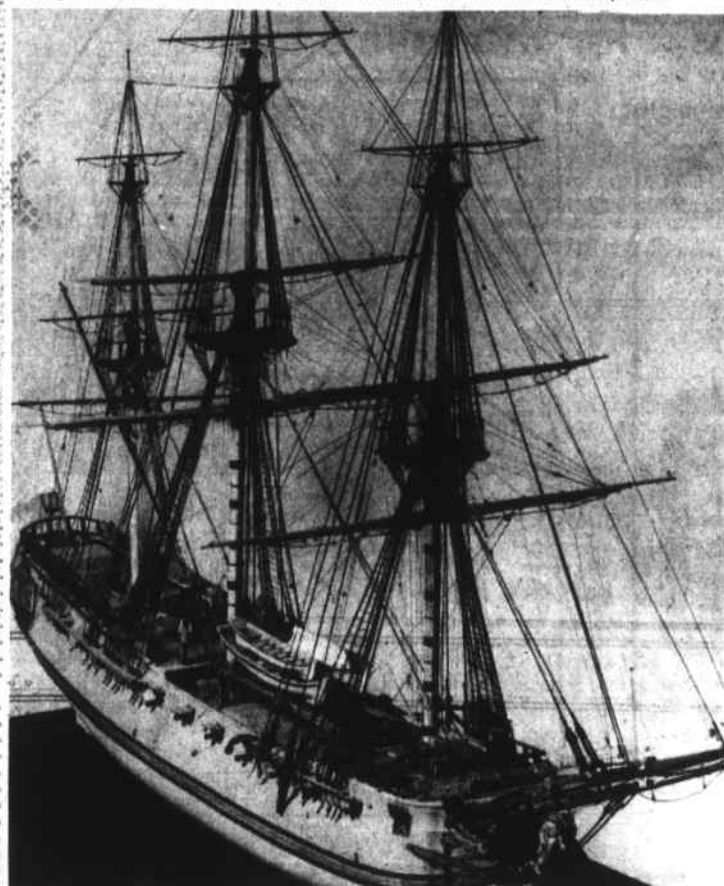

"History is all-important because it is a part of our environment," Dr. Fowler said. "You cannot isolate people from history because it is a present, living process — with a personal context for each of us."

As for democracy itself, he said, strictly speaking, "We do not have a democracy, but a republic with democratic tendencies. When asked what kind of government the delegates to the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia had given the nation, Benjamin Franklin is said to have replied, 'We have given you a republic, if you can keep it.'"

Yet the founders, including the redoubtable Dr. Franklin, were not only republicans but revolutionaries and optimists as well, Fowler said.

"Revolutionaries are by nature optimists," he said, because by his very act the revolutionary is saying: 'I can change history.' What an incredible attitude: It is an act of faith, through governments, in the words of the found-

A MODEL OF THE FRIGATE "RALEIGH," a ship of the American Revolution. Of the navy's performance during the war, William Fowler writes: "While John Adams thought the ineptness of the American navy in the Revolution was enough to cause tears, others were satisfied simply to be embarrassed."

RELAXING IN HIS HOME IN READING, Professor William Fowler looks up for a moment from one of his favorite activities, reading for research. The Fowler household, like America itself, is a republic with strong democratic tendencies.

They also had a solid history of representative form of government, the earliest in the colonies being the Virginia House of Burgesses (1619).

In consequence of their training, education and background, Dr. Fowler said, "The men who created our republic left us with a

ROVING

The other morning a college chum who works as a front desk manager at a nearby prestigious hotel phoned me to ask me if I would like to join him for lunch. I said I would. We arranged to meet in the lobby of the hotel at one o'clock.

When I arrived at the hotel I explained to the bellman that I was meeting my friend who worked there for lunch, and asked if he'd mind if I left my car beneath the glass canopy directly in front of the door for a short time. As we spoke we noticed something very peculiar.

A small compact car, with a young couple in it, suddenly veered off the main drag and whipped onto the driveway leading up to the main door to the hotel. The fellow was operating the vehicle, and it was apparent to the bellman and me that he'd either decided to pull into the hotel at the last minute, or he was being chased by somebody, perhaps the police.

Well, our latter assumption turned out to be the correct one, however, this couple in their tiny compact car wasn't being hotly pursued by the police. Several hundred yards behind the couple's car was a speeding, beat-up pickup truck with, as far as we could tell from that distance, two men inside. They appeared to be hirsute, something you seldom see in this current era of meticulously well-groomed men.

The compact car came to a screeching halt right beside us. The young man jumped out and made a mad dash for the door. We heard him yell beseechingly to another bellman, "Open the door! Open the door! There are two men after me!"

The bellman quickly responded by swinging the door open. The young fellow charged into the lobby of the hotel.

A few seconds later the old pickup truck slammed to a clunky stop behind the compact car. By now this young fellow's female companion had gotten out of the car and was standing on the curb, her face looking terribly fretful.

The guy with long hair on the passenger side of the truck lunged from inside the pickup and charged after the young fellow who'd disappeared into the hotel.

The female companion started screaming, "Don't hurt my boyfriend! Leave him alone!"

The other hairy guy followed closely on the heels of his friend. It was obvious that they were ticked off about something this couple had done to them, and it was even more clear that that young fellow would be no match for the two guys who were in hot pursuit of him. They were, well, to put it bluntly, very, very large, with arms that looked like sledgehammers.

The bellman with whom I was conversing and I hurried inside the hotel to see what was developing. We got in just in time to see the young fellow duck into a doorway to the right of the front desk. The door slammed shut behind him. A hotel employee

SCOTTISH BAND

Saturday, September 29 is the date for one of the season's most exciting folk concerts. Scottish traditional band Ossian will appear at 8:00 P.M. at Palfie Hall, Harvard University. This performance is a Cat's Fiddle Production, co-sponsored by the Harvard University Folklore Department.

Ossian first toured New England in February of 1983, selling out virtually every show they played. With four albums to their credit (a fifth due for release soon), their "soul-stirring music" (Edmonton Sun) arrived in this country before the band did, and paved the way for their warm reception.

This is a concert not to be missed, and likely to be a sellout. Tickets are $6.50 in advance or if available, $7.50 at the door, and can be purchased in Cambridge at Sandy's Music, 896A Mass. Ave. or the Music Emporium, 2018 Mass. Ave., and in Boston at the Alpert Gallery, 90 Chauncy Street. For further information, call 492-8341.

VOLUNTEERS

Participation, communication, appreciation, computation education and gratification all result from volunteering at the New England Aquarium. Why not volunteer some of your time to help one of New England's most popular attractions? To set up an interview with the Volunteer Office please call the Aquarium at 742-8830, ext. 293.

"Jack Tars and Commodores" sense of public service, a responsibility for our leaders to serve the public interest, a function which grows and matures only with the continuing conscientious exercise of that responsibility.

"The strength of our system derives from the fact that we share a fundamental set of common beliefs, and it is important that we maintain that commonality of interests."

Is the republic still flourishing?

"We are more democratic...we are doing well," Dr. Fowler said. "Originally, of course, the vote was limited to white, male property owners 21 years of age or older. In the intervening 200 years we have made our political system more participatory. Though in many instances those who don't participate just don't choose to participate, we have made advances.

"Yet I think the men of the 18th century were more intelligent than our present politicians, partly because they didn't have to shape a campaign or appeal to the mass market. Also, they devoted their time to debate and writing.

"They were motivated by a sense of history and fame — because they were truly concerned with what they would be leaving to their descendants. What drove the men of the Revolution forward was fame, a concern which came from their own experience, because they were so deeply interested in history themselves.

"I sense that in today's world, too often we are persuaded to act — and we do act — on a short-term basis, with short-term solutions."

Does that mean there are cracks in the republic?

"The single greatest danger to the survival of the republic," Professor Fowler said, "would be for us to lose our common cultural and intellectual tradition. That is the sinew that holds us together.

"If we become fragmented, and lose or forget our common interests, then the nation is in trouble.

"I see more and more students now who view the goal of their education in one short-term value: the immediate need of a job. The student says, 'I want those courses which will serve the immediate purpose of my major; I want only what will help my career.'"

Dr. Fowler said that that sort of fragmentation in the society seems to be on the increase: a separation and pigeon-holding of the disciplines, the professions, the different callings.

"It's not just a question of aesthetics," he said. "Fragmentation is dangerous, even pernicious, because it is shared values which provide the cement that holds the nation together."

What are some of those shared values, according to Dr. Fowler?

- Respect for law and the processes of law.
- Respect for individual rights.
- Tolerance of dissent.
- A belief in political solutions: that our political system can solve problems through rational discourse, respect for divergent, even unpopular views, debate, and compromise, without resorting to extreme measures.

"During our Civil War, for example," Fowler said, "the belief in political solutions and compromise was fractured because men concluded that the political problems could not be solved by political means."

And with what results?

"The American Civil War was the first modern war, and the most destructive for us in terms of loss of life and carnage. It introduced many 'modern' features of war, on a massive basis: rapid-fire guns, trench warfare, barbed wire — and resulted in huge numbers of men dying and wounded. In many single battles of the War between the States: the Wilderness, Antietam, Bull Run, Gettysburg — more men died in one day of battle than in the entire eight years of the revolution."

Yet there was a similar attitude on the part of the survivors of both conflicts, Fowler said:

"The experience of being part of the American Revolution became one to be cherished: to have been in at the beginning, at the founding of the republic. Survivors felt they had been part of a great enterprise; the same was true with survivors of both sides of the Civil War."

The same is not true, he said, of survivors of the most recent war, in Vietnam: there is no sense there of having been involved in a "great enterprise."

As for the present, "We shape our history according to our contemporary needs," Dr. Fowler said. "each generation writes its own history, with its own perspective.

"My perspective on events is likely to be based on my experience. I am likely to emphasize my concerns just by virtue of being a white male of a certain age and background. In a more cynical and callous age we may look for read history because it has something to tell us. Out of our shared values and this almost volatile, very diverse, changing society emerge creativity and vitality. And I have faith in the human ability to solve problems, via that creative friction which is a constant wellspring in our society."

Creativity and vitality are certainly words to be applied to Bill Fowler. As well as being an author, he is also managing editor of the New England Quarterly, a member of the advisory board of WGBH-TV and full professor of history at Northeastern University. His previous books include "Rebels Under Sail," a dramatic account of the American navy during the revolution, and "The Baron of Beacon Hill," a biography of John Hancock.

A reading of "Jack Tars and Commodores" will take you among sultans and pirates, crooks and commodores, self-serving politicians and bureaucrats and men of nobler stamp, navy captains of supreme competence and compassion, and some who are sheerly inept. It will show you not only the mighty, but will focus as well "on the quarter-deck," according to the publisher.

Professor Fowler, who earned his undergraduate degree at Northeastern, also holds both the M.A. and PhD degrees from Notre Dame. He lives on Franklin Street, Reading, with his wife Marilyn (Noble) Fowler and their two children. "Jack Tars and Commodores," by the way, which is a tribute to the navy as the "chief glory" of the early republic, is dedicated to two of the chief glories of the Fowler household, the Fowler children themselves: Alison, five, and Nathaniel, three, who have their own commonality of interests. Among them: admiration for Mickey Mouse, a taste for orange juice and a great delight in drawing rainbows.

From my thoroughly enjoyable evening visit and interview, I suspect the Fowler household itself may be a republic with strong democratic tendencies.

who'd just exited through that same door hesitated in her tracks, then turned and stared at the door, confused by the blur that had just whooshed past her. By the time she regained her senses — she definitely had the look on her face that said, no, I didn't just see a man in civies run by me and lock himself in the backroom to the front office — she had to confront another mass — this one considerably larger, hairier and very frightening — charging like a runaway bull directly toward her.

The girl stepped to one side, and the angry pursuer thundered past her, reaching for the doorknob. The door had locked automatically after it had shut. This enraged the big guy even more. His face had become beet-red, his eyes maniacal. His neck swelled with blood that rushed through thick, purplish veins to the top of his head.

At this point, we heard some commotion in the back room. One of the front desk personnel said that the young guy had just locked himself in one of the accounting offices, where another employee was counting receipts from the night before.

The big guy changed his mind; he wasn't going to try to smash his way through the door to the back room, an idea that we could tell he was contemplating by the way he anxiously sized up the door. Instead, he ran up to the front desk, where a few guests checking into the hotel and employees alike were looking on in dumbfounded amazement, and with a single bound, leapt over the counter, which had to be at least four feet high.

My friend — I wasn't sure whether he'd spotted me or not — made a valiant attempt to prevent this big guy from completing his jump, but to no avail. The big guy pushed my friend aside and disappeared into the back room.

The other big guy who was chasing the young fellow followed his buddy over the counter. He vanished into the back room too. We could all hear the big guys banging on the door to the accounting office with their fists. I was sure hoping that, for the little guy's sake, the door help up.

By now the hotel security people had arrived. They hurried past everybody, and after quickly punching a code into the lock on the door next to the front desk, they also disappeared into the back room.

Within seconds the two big guys with all the hair came charging back over the countertop and rumbled by us in the direction of the front door. They shoved their way through the door, climbed back into their pick-up truck and then sped away. Perhaps they'd decided they'd accomplished what they'd set out to do — to scare the wits out of that young fellow — and figured it was best to hightail it out of there before the police arrived.

A few minutes later the police did show up. The hotel people were trying to calm the young couple down. They were relating what had led up to this bizarre incident. Apparently this young fellow in his compact car had cut the two big guys in the pick-up truck off the highway. They took serious offense to it, and chased the couple into the hotel.

I finally got to talk to my friend, who had to tell his side of the story to the police before we could take off for lunch. By the time we got around to ordering our food, our appetites had waned considerably.

After all the excitement in the hotel lobby, two chicken salad sandwiches with potato chips somehow didn't seem as appealing as they had when I'd just arrived at the hotel.

POEMS

MY CHILD IS MISSING

Haunting sounds of joyous laughter
Memories of him still remain
Often hushed by wild imaginings
Of some horrid senseless pain

Floating on a cloud of sorrow
High above real life I seem Living yet until tomorrow
When he will return, I dream

Other children all around me
Anxious I am for them all
Careful, watchful, always leary
Of a stranger's friendly smile

If only I had warned my children
Taught them all to be afraid
Then maybe he'd be here today
What a big mistake I made

Parents, teach your children, please
Let them know of danger true Teach them how to scream if taken
So they won't be victims too

HOUSEWIFE BLUES

Dust that shelf
Clean that floor
Make those beds
Do so much more

Keep that house
So neat and clean
While it shines
It won't be seen

Only on the day when you
Had no time to fret or fuss
Will your friends drop by to chat
When your house is in a mess

Smile and say, "So nice to see you"
While inside you die for sure
Hoping their house is a mess too
When you knock upon their door!

PARENT AIDE

Men and women from this area are currently being sought to serve as Parent Aides to parents under stress in the Eastern Middlesex and Saugus areas. The primary focus of this program is on the development of a trusting, caring relationship with a lonely, isolated, overwhelmed parent, as a prelude to assisting the parent in establishing his or her own critically necessary support system. Volunteers are not required to be parents, but a knowledge and understanding of the stresses of parenting is essential.

Time commitment required would be a minimum of three to five hours per week, for a period of approximately one year. Actual hours are flexible, and the volunteer has direct involvement in choosing both the location and type of household entered.

Required activities include an initial eight week training program (three hours per week), and participation in weekly group supervision. Individual supervision is available as requested or required.

An orientation meeting is scheduled for Monday, September 10th at 7 p.m. at Listen, Inc., 28 Taylor Street, Saugus. Please call Nancy at 233-8911 for further information.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

I don't know when I've met a friendlier or more congenial person than Robert (Bun) Lempfer, manager of the Woburn Elks. It's been a pleasure to talk to him on my visits there. (His wife, Maureen, is one of the receptionists at the Woburn Times.) One of their members reminds me of the great John L. Sullivan, champion prize fighter of the world. Of course, I am referring to Bill McGar, who is a champion in his own right as far as I'm concerned. Not in fighting, but one who shakes your hand and says: "I'm your friend," and really means it. Another great guy to know is Mr. Queeno, who, with his friend Al Altavista, have served more roast beef in one day than many restaurants serve in a month.

Of the many cousins I have, Herbert Shea and myself are the only two who didn't graduate from college. That fact doesn't bother me at all because, as I wrote in a previous article, I helped build (with my late father) many houses in the Middlesex East area and feel I have contributed as much or even more than some of my college-educated cousins to help many families live in a solidly-built house. But Herby tells everyone that he is a CPA. Now, that bothers me, because I know he isn't one. He defends himself by saying, "Look, I'm in the 'cleaning, pressing and alterations' business, so I am a CPA."

Saul Ziner, of Lynnfield, my friend and real CPA, and Carmine Carmine Mastrogianni, CPA, I hope you will forgive my cousin Herbert the tailor. It 'seams' that he'd better 'iron' out his problems because it's a 'waist' of time to 'hem and haw.' 'Sew' what if we didn't go to college, it 'suits' me fine.

When my Aunt Maria reads this, I just know she will shout from the rooftop, "I told you, I told you, that Woodchipper is nuts, and now you know."

I hate long speeches, lectures and sermons. After 20 minutes of talking it's pretty difficult to save any more souls. Sad to say, some members of my family have decided to sleep on Sunday mornings thereby becoming 'pillows' of the church. Their patron saint is St. Mattress. I remember the late Father Jeremiah Murphy, a forceful, dynamic and eloquent speaker. His sermons were only about 10 minutes long, but boy, he'd pack a wallop in each one of them.

I paid $50 to have my family tree looked up and it cost me $500 to keep it quiet. Even a neighbor of mine is getting into the act. Louis O'Malley just said to me, "Woodchipper, don't ever look up your family tree, because one of your relatives may throw a coconut down at you."

I take my film to Stoneham Camera Center to be developed. I never miss taking wonderful pictures of people smiling. My secret is this — while most photographers tell their subjects to say 'cheese,' I tell them to say 'pizza' from Kenny's.

A lady called me and wanted to order two yards of 'woodchips' for mulch in her garden. I told her I don't sell bark, mulch or woodchips — it's the name of my column. I advised her to call Bob Engel & Sons Inc. for better results.

I feel good. My elevator stock went up five floors last week — I bought '7-Up' when it was six; my designer jeans stock 'split'; 100 shares of potato chips proved to be a 'Wise' investment; my bakery stock was doing good until the yeast failed to 'rise' and I lost all my 'dough.'

No truer words were ever spoken: "He who has not loved wine, women or song, has been a fool his whole life long."

The crew picked to serve on "Old Ironsides," are selected because of their strong 'Constitution.'

In spite of all the corny jokes, puns and quips, the following are still my friends and readers of Woodchips: Orry and Cecell Vigilante of Lynnfield, Lee Bailey of Tewksbury, Eleanor and Buddy Stratton and Alma and Sherman Murphy of North Reading, Gail and Christopher LeBlanc and Bill Dwyer of Wakefield, Bob Pacy of Town

Taxi in Stoneham, Scot Brian and Bill McCall of Woburn, Forest and Betty Knowles of Burlington, Ed Baratta of Winchester, and of course, my Aunt Maria of Wilmington, who hates me, the column and the whole world. But I love you, Aunt Maria, I really do.

May the hills never be too steep.
And may God always be by your pillow,

May the wind always be at your back, Laddie.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

The Wakefield Recycling Committee (WRC) wishes to thank area citizens for participating in our recent paper drive and helping us to establish a new record! On Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 18 and 19, 35.28 tons of newspapers, phone books and magazines were collected, earning the WRC and its co-sponsors a total of $529.20.

On both days, free raffles were held, tickets being issued to all recyclers. Prizes were Red Sox tickets (two sets), a Christmas tree to be picked up in December, and a case of gourmet ice cream treats. Our lucky winners all came from Wakefield, but someone from your town might get lucky in September...

The two raffles gave us the opportunity to keep a count of how many people come to the drive and what town they live in. We had over 600 people from Wakefield, 30 from Reading, 20 from Melrose, 10 from Stoneham, six from Woburn, and recyclers from Winthrop, Boston, Peabody and other areas. In all, 450 people dropped paper off on Saturday, and 240 on Sunday. That's a lot of traffic, but anyone who has been to our drives can assure you that we make the whole experience a very positive one: we are cheerful, grateful, and as efficient as we can be. We work hard for our money, and we treat our donors with friendly respect.

The Wakefield Y's Men, a service organization of the YMCA, and a new group named Parents and Tots (PAT) served as our co-sponsors for the drive. In return for their hard work at the trailers, the Y's Men will take home $264.72; PAT earned $158.64, which they are going to donate to the Wakefield Center Neighborhood Association for playground rehabilitation.

In addition, the Town will save $672.08 in disposal fees, and 600 trees were saved from the paper mill by recycling this quantity of paper.

We would like to thank your town's recyclers, and encourage others to join them. Our next drive is on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 15 and 16, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., rain or shine, at the Junior High School, 525 Main St., Wakefield.

Chairman, WRC

"The Primary English Class"

Another superb Horovitz effort

By RICK PEARL

GLOUCESTER — A summer of marvelous entertainment came to a close at the Blackburn Tavern this past Sunday, as the Gloucester Stage Company's fifth season of contemporary American drama wrapped things up until next year.

The fourth of the GSC's presentations, "The Primary English Class," written by the company's artistic director Israel Horovitz (a native of Wakefield), proved to be a fitting finale for this summer's fare.

"The Primary English Class," written during a workshop at Brandeis University that Horovitz was overseeing eight years ago, has gained international fame since that time. It made its New England debut at the Blackburn Theatre with this production.

And like "Mr. & Mrs. Talley's Folly," and "To Gillian On Her 37th Birthday" before it, Horovitz's masterfully written play gives credence to the claim that the GSC is among the best at offering thoughtful, provocative, and highly entertaining theatre to the vacation clientele.

"The Primary English Class" is a hilarious examination of the barriers that keep people separated in a hostile world.

The barrier that Horovitz focuses on is that of language. Five foreigners come to America for a variety of reasons. All have a problem. They don't speak English. To learn and understand the language is paramount to their survival in the country.

All five choose to attend a primary English class at a local school. Their first night of lessons is the setting for the play.

As each person files in, they realize that the lines of communication that they have taken for granted do not apply here. No one understands anyone else.

The Italian doesn't understand the Frenchman. The Frenchman doesn't understand the German. No one understands the old Chinese woman, nor the young Japanese woman.

Enter the teacher. An American woman. She doesn't understand anyone either.

The end result is a madcap example of ethnic biases, misinterpretations, and ill-founded fears in which each and every person in the small classroom becomes alienated from the other.

The writing is superb. The acting in the Gloucester presentation dutifully lived up to the brilliant prose.

The star of the show was Jay Ginsberg, who stars as Patumiera, the Italian. Ginsberg, who was also a wow in "Talley's Folly," is a great comic actor who seems to relish roles such as this. His manner is wonderfully stereotypical of an Italian male.

An equally glimmering performance was turned in by Dossy Peabody as Debbie Westba, the teacher.

The entire cast, Frank DeGuisne (LaPoubelle, the Frenchman), David George (Mulleimer, the German), Lori Tan Chinn (Mrs. Pong, the Chinese woman), and Suya Edwards (Yoko Kusukago, the Japanese woman), not to mention John Kargul as the Polish janitor, were wonderful.

Next summer's offerings, which will mark the GSC's sixth year of operation, will be well worth seeing if it comes anything close to what was presented this season. To make sure you find out about the 1985 schedule as soon as possible (there were many disappointed people who came to the theatre this year only to find the shows sold out) call 1-281-4099 for information about being on the mailing list.

Summer theatre is a great and inexpensive way to spend a cool night by the shore, and the Gloucester Stage Company is the best around these parts.

DOSSY PEABODY (left), who plays the role of Debbie Westba, an English "teacher," confronts one of her students, Mrs. Pong (Lori Tan Chinn)

MOVIE REVIEWS

Rochelle Flynn

"Sheena"
"Cloak and Dagger"

"Sheena" starring Tanya Roberts, Ted Wass, Donovan Scott. Directed by John Guillermin. Produced by Paul Aratow. Screenplay by David Newman and Lorenzo Semple, Jr. Rated PG (profanity, nudity, violence).
Former Charlie's Angel Tanya

Roberts should inherit this year's worst acting award from Pia Zadora for her portrayal of "Sheena," the queen of the jungle.
Set in a mythical, modern day African country, Roberts climbs into her custom-fitted, skin bikini and mounts a horse disguised as a zebra for the leading role. Sheena, the daughter of missionary doctors, is orphaned as a young girl and raised by the shaman, or wise woman, of an African tribe. As Sheena, Roberts learns to communicate with animals and hit any target with her trusty arrow. What she didn't learn to do was act.

Roberts proves once again that she could further her career by closing her mouth (remember "Beastmaster"). Her atrocious performance as the jungle girl elicited ridicule and outright howls of laughter from the audience. Roberts looks absolutely breathtaking, but her best moments occur when director John Guillermin poses her against scenic landscapes, and that gets dull very quickly.

The fact that Guillermin takes the corny, campy script seriously and ignores Sheena's pulp comic beginnings doesn't help matters either. By definition, a character based on a comic book creation is larger than life. If Guillermin had employed a lighter touch, even the stilted dialogue would not have appeared so absurd. Also, who does Guillermin think he's kidding with his painted horses and phony backdrop of birds? Audiences are far too sophisticated these days for such simplistic plays.

The exceptions to this flick are Ted Wass and his sidekick Donovan Scott, who provides the comic relief. Wass does his best with his role and, along with Scott, manages a few amusing scenes. Too bad there weren't more of them, because, unless you really like either Tanya Roberts or picturesque scenes of African wildlife, don't bother, as "Sheena" is one jungle queen who has slipped off her throne.

"Cloak And Dagger" starring Henry Thomas, Dabney Coleman, Christina Nigra and Michael Murphy. Directed by Richard Franklin. Produced by Allan Carr. Screenplay by Tom Holland. Rated PG (mildly violent).

Jack Flack, otherwise known as Agent X, is on a secret mission. He must help Davey Osborne thwart the evil plans of enemy spies, as they try to smuggle American defense plans out of the country in a video game cartridge of "Cloak and Dagger."

The twist in this thriller is that Davey is only 11-years-old, and Jack Flack is visible only to Davey, as he is a figment of the boy's overactive imagination. The rest of the story, however, is true, but no one believes Davey, because he has made espionage a way of life.

Set in San Antonio, Texas, this spy caper is played for chills, thrills and laughs. The irascible Jack Flack is the spitting image of Davey's father, and provides a delightful dual role for Dabney Coleman, who gives one of his best performances. Henry Thomas of "E. T." fame portrays Davey, and gives an incredibly detailed and adept performance for such a young man.

Rounding out this already strong cast is the tiny, red headed Christina Nigra. Spunky and sensible, she is the perfect foil for Thomas' imaginative character. As a matter of fact, the entire film, from the acting to the location shots, is just wonderful. It is entertaining, great for children without being condescending, and is well made. What more could you want from a movie, except, maybe, free popcorn.

Professional Secretaries International, the voice of the secretarial profession, has more than 40,000 members in chapters located throughout the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands and in affiliate chapters in Australia, Asia, Europe, Central and South America, the West Indies, and South Africa.

Looking forward to resumption of Route 128 Chapter meetings on Tuesday, September 11, at the Holiday Inn in Waltham, Miss Crowell invites all interested secretaries to attend; she states that if you would like additional information on Professional Secretaries International, please call her at 933-6048 (evenings).

Also at its June meeting, the Route 128 Chapter awarded its Dorothy E. After working full time this summer, she will resume her studies this fall at Fisher Junior College.

TANYA ROBERTS stars as "Sheena," a beautiful primeval woman who possesses a magical gift and must fight to save her idyllic world in Columbia Pictures' romantic adventure directed by John Guillermin.

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

The Crowley Cheese factory in Healdville, Vermont, listed on the National Register of Historic Places as the oldest continuously operating cheese factory in the country, welcomes visitors year 'round.

The Crowley factory, which began operation in 1882, still uses the traditional tools and techniques with which it started over a century ago. The factory produces "colby" cheese, a variety of Vermont cheese similar to cheddar, that is not produced by any other cheese-maker in the state.

Handmade Crowley cheese is highly regarded by cheese connoisseurs. Though available in a few Vermont retail shops, most Crowley cheese is sold to factory visitors, or, mainly, to mail-order buyers worldwide.

Factory visitors receive guided tours and explanations of the traditional Crowley cheese-making process, as well as a chance to sample the finished product. The factory is open Monday through Saturday, from 8 AM to 4 PM. Cheese-making usually is finished by 2 PM.

The Crowley factory is located 20 miles southeast of Rutland, Vermont, in the village of Healdville, just off Vermont Route 103.

Print Show in Concord

The Boston Printmakers, marking their 36th year of continuous cultural service, will open an exhibition at the Concord Art Association with a 4 PM reception on Sunday, September 16. The exhibition will continue through October 7. Gallery hours are 11 AM to 4:30 PM, Tuesday through Saturday, 2 PM to 4:30 PM on Sunday. The Concord Art Association is located at 37 Lexington Rd., Concord, Tel: 369-2578.

There is an admission charge. Visitors are invited to bring lunch and picnic in the Colonial Garden. Chairs and tables are provided. For directions to the Art Association facility, take Route 2 to Rt. 126 to Concord Center.

Chorale Society seeks singers

Members of the North Parish Chorale Society will clear their throats next Wednesday evening, listen for the pitch, and begin a new season of singing together for pleasure and performance in a new meeting place, Andover's Sanborn School, and under a new conductor, David Tierney.

At that first rehearsal, Wednesday, Sept. 12 at 7:30 PM, conductor Tierney will be looking for new singers from the communities of the Andovers and the Readings and all in-between to join them. Experience is less important than the desire to sing and the willingness to commit one's self to the regular Wednesday evening rehearsals. The North Parish Chorale Society will give three concerts this year.

Singers now come from Andover and North Andover, North Reading and Reading, as well as Acton, Bradford, Chelmsford, Burlington, Lynn, Methuen and Wilmington. If you love to sing, then the North

Parrish Chorale Society looks forward to your presence next Wednesday evening in the Sanborn School on Lovejoy Road in Andover, between Dascomb Road and Route 133. For further information, call conductor David Tierney at 647-0336.

Concert Season at the Gardner

The Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum 1984-1985 concert season offers a varied program of 125 free concerts from September through June. The series ranges from Shakespeare, mime and Noel Coward, to Bach, Beethoven, Mozart and contemporary composers. Concerts are given in the Tapestry Room Sundays at 3 PM, Tuesdays at 6 PM and Thursdays at 12:15 PM. A contribution of $2 is requested upon admission to the museum. Members of the museum may request reserved seats. The cafe offers light dinners before and after the Tuesday evening concerts, and lunch can be obtained after the Thursday program.

The first concert of the new season will be a recital of Beethoven sonatas by the eminent pianist Richard Goode, on Tuesday, September 11 at 6 PM.

For information on particular programs, call the museum's music line at 734-1359. A poster announcing the highlights of the season will be coming out later in the summer. For a copy call the museum office at 566-1401 and leave your name and address.

From cheesemaking to chorale-making, from evening concerts to print exhibitions, COMING ATTRACTIONS has something for everyone. But we miss a few. And if you know of an event of interest to all that has slipped by our mention, write, care of this local newspaper, and wake us up on the matter. We constantly seek new adventures and pleasures.

Children's Drama Workshop begins twelfth year

The Children's Drama Workshop, 19 Robin Road, Reading, now in its twelfth year, will begin the fall-winter semester on September 17th. Taught by Irene Ehl, the Workshop is for children from 7 to 16 years of age.

The Workshop year is divided into two 15-week semesters. The first semester is devoted to theater games, improvisations and pantomimes. "Through the playing of theater games," according to Mrs. Ehl, "and the intuitive unrehearsed acting in improvisations and pantomimes, the student explores his own potential by sharpening his concentration, expressing his emotions with body and voice and using his imagination, thus creating on three levels — the intellectual, the physical and the intuitive."

The second semester concentrates on rehearsing monologues, scenes and plays for a public performance in June. During this period the student learns the art of focus and motivation, the building of stage character and stage movement. Mrs. Ehl states, "Public performance will raise the student's whole level of understanding and skills experienced during the first semester. The importance of both semesters is that together they work towards one goal, the total growth of the student in creativity, self-confidence and discipline."

In the past members of the Children's Drama Workshop have appeared in community theatre and the North Shore Music Circus.

Also, by becoming aware of the variety of human experiences through the playwright's eyes and by acting out some of these situations, the children learn more about themselves and the world around them.

Irene Ehl, founder of the Children's Drama Workshop, is a certified teacher and a graduate of Boston University with a degree in theater arts and speech. She has been an active member of the Quannapowitt Players of Reading for many years, both as an actress and director. Mrs. Ehl has also directed for others community theaters and acted and directed in the New England Theater Conference.

For more information concerning the workshop, please call Irene Ehl, 19 Robin Road, Reading, 944-7241.

Voodoo LuPu, played by Meredith Leery of Woburn, is about to pin the victim as Magic Mirror, played by Rachael Gliona of Melrose, looks on — a scene from the Children's Drama Workshop's year end production. For more information about the Fall - Winter semester call 944-7241
